Bones Brigade “The Joust” <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=LzuGha-ygXU>

Design Objectives:

I picked this song because it one of the songs that I immediately think to turn on when I am about to go skate. It doesn't have a narrative it is purely instrumental. For me it evokes a feeling of excitement (fast) and seriousness when needed, it makes me feel crazy but in a good way like I want to jump down a set of stairs or start pushing as fast as I can thru traffic. My goal as the creator is to create an interactive web page that will in a way evoke (replicate) / influence the feeling gotten when you are skating. Before going skating I usually watch some skateboard videos listen to some music or something to get myself hyped and I am not the only one, many skaters practice the same ritual, therefore I would like to create a place for not only myself but other skateboards to go in order to get that pre sesh hype in order the viewer.

Audience Needs:

My audience will be skateboarders. I will be designing with everyone in mind to create a webpage that can be seen and understood by all different types of skaters. Some variables that would be good to consider in making a successful experience for the users may be

- Easy navigation
- Pleasing layout
- Interaction design that keeps the user involved
- Wide range of content

Content Requirements:

- Skateboard videos
- Skateboard photos
- Songs
- Lights and flashing (like the stage lighting at a Metal concert)
- Links
- Text
- Navigation
- Colors

Functional Requirements:

- User can view videos, images and songs
- User can filter out different types of inspirations
- User can click on links to go to other inspirational pages such as thrasher ex...
- User can choose different ways to receive the hype either music, video, pictures or all of them at the same time.
- User can choose the intensity of the hype (choose the dosage) depending on the type of sesh he will have whether it be a heavy to chill.
